

Time Management Problem Statement

Group Members : Mashal Shami, Ashritha Natarajan, and Ruchika Paladugu

Problem Statement:

- Students at Universities or in college often find it difficult to manage their time as they have to navigate numerous classes, all while maintaining connections and attempting to become involved with student organizations.

Details:

- In terms of Universities and college, it can be difficult to manage your time while balancing your academic and social life. Students can begin to feel overwhelmed when they fall behind in academics or are not able to attend certain events. This is an issue of time management as a full time student. This problem can present itself as not having time to finish assignments or putting off your academics for social reasons. This is a problem that is important and needs to be solved because it can interfere with the capabilities of students and hinder their potential at their given college or University.